Ordering From Olallie Daylily Gardens

We have observed that fewer and fewer people are ordering via the postal mail. We still are happy to fill orders that way but are no longer including an order form.

If you would like to mail in an order, just use a blank piece of paper and calculate as described below. Shipping totals are based on a dollar amount and should be easy to figure. If credit card is supplied as payment we can figure it all for you and of course invoice you when we ship.

As one might suspect there are many, many more cultivars available online. And in fact there are many yet undiscovered gems on the farm that only a traveller coming in person can discover.

We are a small nursery and as such have a hard time keeping up with phone calls, give us a call but please be patient, we are probably outside digging!

We are looking forward to 2019. We will be dividing a lot of our newer cultivars to make room for seedlings and other plants. This year we plan to fill most of our bed edges with annual and cut flowers. Check our website for pictures!

One of our many flower borders. Here, Calendula and Kale make a backdrop for one of our daylily beds.

We hand select plants as we sell them. Come during bloom season and we'll dig them right up for you!

Ellen Darrow continues to produce amazing carved ceramics. Contact her if you are interested reticentmuse3@gmail.com or see her at the Rock River Open Studio Tour 3rd week of July 2019

We grow hardy stuff. One of our "stray" daylilies growing and contrasting with Baptisia beautifully.

Because we grow such a variety of cultivars and types, we are constantly taking notes and photographs of the plants.

Our newest addition: Pip, already a big girl but she's still a puppy at heart and loves to run and chase balls. Pip has one of the sweetest personalities we've seen in a long time. And she thinks she's a lap dog.

We are regularly dividing and moving our daylilies, new cultivars are introduced every year. The soil is amended with compost as we plant out newly divided rows

Chris has been working on small early reds. Here is a cross section of some that are being evaluated and will be moved to the main beds this year. These all bloom before peak season.

This is one of Chris' favorite pictures. It demonstrates the amazingly varied nature of daylilies. Here are 5 different very tall daylily cultivars. Their character is so unique that sometimes it takes a bit of work to find a place for these. But once planted they these plants will live for decades untended.

Many of our newer cultivars are going to do divided and moved. Some fans of each will be available for sale. Check our website, or email me directly if you are interested in anything in particular.

Name A Daylily:

Chris has developed a large selection of hybrid cultivars. Because of this we are always looking for new names for our daylilies and so are offering customers the opportunity to name a daylily. The process is simple, just contact us about it or check online. The cost is $100.00 for naming and typically $35 for a blooming size plant ("A" size). You will get a certificate and the plant will be officially registered with your name choice. The prefix Olallie will be added and there is restrictions on length and words used. contacts us for more information.

Species Daylilies

The Hemerocallis species are often overlooked. Each exhibits wonderful garden characteristics, particularly suited for cottage gardens, wild plantings, collections, and other less formal gardens. As with all daylilies, they provide a hardy long-lived backbone to any garden, yet are understated and so meld well with other plants.

MEXICAN SUN

Late Bloomers

Late blooming daylilies are rare. Thanks to Dr. Darrow's collecting and extensive breeding we have a large collection of lates. Beginning as summer winds down, they are in full bloom just before the Vermont foliage begins to turn. Many bloom right up to hard frost. They glow in the autumn sun, bringing a glorious end to the flower season.

Olallie Cultivars

The original Olallie cultivars, were developed by Dr. George Darrow. Over the twenty years or so in which Dr. Darrow collected and hybridized daylilies, he worked improving on tetraploid daylilies, getting good saturated color and consistent performance. His best work was in the area of late and extra late bloomers. Dr. Darrow's hybridizing program which began in 1957 developed over 50 varieties. Chris is developing loads of cultivars too and has over 100 developed already with more on the way!
