Christmas Comes Early to Boston

CUE THE CALLIOPE

Boston Common, already a popular attraction for Boston residents and visitors alike, adds a brand-new festive element this month. Through November 9, the Boston Common Frog Pond Foundation has set up a 30-horse carousel adjacent to the Frog Pond. This lovely, classic amusement for children of all ages is open daily from 11 a.m.-9 p.m., with tickets costing $2 for a three-minute ride. The Hub's hippest new horses are here on a trial basis, and a positive response could make the Frog Pond Carousel a permanent addition by next spring. Call 617-635-2120 for more information.

(FILM) FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS

Lovers of great films and Jewish culture look forward to fall in Boston, as it means the arrival of the Boston Jewish Film Festival. Now in its 20th year, the Festival screens close to 50 independently produced films from around the world, all of which convey various facets of the Jewish experience.

This year's festival, which takes place November 5-16, features screenings at various locations in and around Boston—including the Museum of Fine Arts and the Coolidge Corner Theatre in Brookline—and notable films making their U.S., regional or world premieres at the festival include actor/screenwriter William H. Macy's The Deal, the heartwarming postwar tale The Gift to Stalin (pictured above) and the sweet coming-of-age story Max Minsky and Me. Refer to individual theater listings, page 20. A Crab for All Seasons

THE BARKING CRAB 88 Sleeper St. • 617-426-2722

∧ ll summer long, the Htented-in patio of Boston shellfish stalwart The Barking Crab draws seafood lovers to the water's edge along Boston Harbor. However, the deliciousness doesn't go into hibernation when cold weather comes-during the winter months, The Barking Crab closes the patio doors and welcomes diners indoors to enjoy its new fall/winter menu that incorporates comfort foods with the usual summer favorites. Menu items like lobster ravioli, boasting fresh lobster, sherry cream sauce and rock shrimp, creamy mac 'n' cheese topped with bread crumbs and lobster, and seasonal regional microbrews and cocktails like the hot apple cider toddy are sure to remove the chill from your bones. -Nicole McGovern

A CHURCH SUPPER

EAT YOUR HEART OUT BOSTON Church 69 Kilmarnock St. 617-236-7600 November 16 at 6 p.m.

Plenty of folks go to church on Sunday and don't get anything tastier for their efforts than communion wafers. On November 16 at Fenway hotspot Church, however, you can do some real good, and eat like a king to boot, at Eat Your Heart Out Boston. This charity event benefits The Food Project-which educates inner-city youth on how to grow and harvest their own foodand features cuisine from eight of Boston's most acclaimed chefs, including Andy Husbands of Tremont 647 and Jamie Bissonnette of Toro. The food is followed by a night of indie rock from up-and-coming Beantown bands like The Everyday Visuals (pictured) and Thick as Thieves, making it a feast for -Josh B. PUBLICK HOUSE PROVISIONS 1706 Beacon St., Brookline 617-277-2880

ROADHOUSE CRAFT BEER & BBQ 1700 Beacon St., Brookline 617-487-4289

It's been a busy year for the owners of popular beer bar The Publick House. This spring, they opened Publick House Provisions (pictured above), a specialty market selling high-quality imported foodstuffs, including fine chocolates and more than 50 kinds of cheeses from around the world. In September, the store finally received its license to sell alcohol and wasted no time in adding more than 250 craft beers to its stock, delighting local brew connoisseurs. Most recently, a new restaurant joined the burgeoning Publick empire: Roadhouse Craft Beer and BBQ, which serves up good ol' fashioned Texas barbeque straight from a custom-built, 4,500-pound smoker. Quality beer, cheese and barbecued meats-is this Washington Square or is it heaven? -Joseph Normandin

The Big Bhangra

or one exciting night, the Orpheum Theatre plays host to a dance competition that puts the C-listers on "Dancing with the Stars" to shame. The fifth annual Boston Bhangra Competition unites dance troupes from across North America for a vibrant and entrancing evening of bhangra—a high-energy folk dance popular in Punjab and Pakistan. The co-ed dance teams wear bright and colorful traditional costumes and perform intensely rhythmic numbers that incorporate dance and acrobatics, resembling a cross between hip-hop and cheerleading. The event features live music from renowned UK artist Alaap, as well as DJs spinning pulsating bhangra beats, that will have you fighting the urge to dance in the aisles. Refer to listing, page 22.—Josh B. more seasonal spirits. Bella Luna in Jamaica Plain recently introduced several tasty new cocktails celebrating autumn's arrival. If you're too old for trick-or-treating but still have a sweet tooth for Halloween candy, there's the Candy Corn—a fusion of Mt. Gay Rum, Frangelico, Bailey's and cream. Or if you're more into apple-picking, pick the Caramel Apple Martini, a blend of Svedka Vodka, butterscotch schnapps and organic apple cider served in a sugar-rimmed glass. These are libations you're sure to fall for. —Joseph Normandin

Pick Your Poison

DRINK 348 Congress St. 617-695-1806

Are you stuck in a cocktail rut, drinking your same old "usual" over and over again? If so, famed restaurateur Barbara Lynch's newest endeavor-the Fort Point cocktail lounge Drink-is the place to break that malaise. When master mixologist John Gertsen and staff ask "What's your pleasure?" they really mean it: at Drink, there's no standard cocktail menu. Instead, give the bartenders a particular liquor, flavor or even mood as a starting point. and they'll craft an individual cocktail just for you. Add in a small selection of accompanying canapés (anything from deviled eggs to foie gras lollipops) and the atmosphere at Drink is akin to a small cocktail party put on by very knowledgeable hosts.

Elle of a Show

LEGALLY BLONDE THE MUSICAL The Opera House Through November 9

The girl who added a touch of pink to the Harvard crimson makes her all-singing, all-dancing Boston debut as Legally Blonde The Musical arrives fresh from Broadway. The hilarious musical, based on the 2001 Reese Witherspoon film, follows the determined Elle Woods from UCLA to Harvard Law School on her quest to win back her pretentious boyfriend. With pup Bruiser and a Greek chorus of sorority sisters in tow, Elle hits the books trying to transform from a "Marilyn" into a "Jackie," realizing along the way that it's tres chic to stay true to yourself. Tony Award-winning director/choreographer Jerry Mitchell has created a fun, infectious and upbeat show that proves beyond a doubt that blondes have more fun. Refer to listing, page 24.

Love Story

BOLEROS FOR THE DISENCHANTED Huntington Theatre Company Through November 15

The exhilarating flush of newfound love has inspired countless poets and scribes to wax lyrical. Capturing a marriage, however—the magic of ongoing passion and commitment—is another story. Playwright Jose Rivera tackles the topic head-on in Boleros for the Disenchanted, playing at the Calderwood Pavilion through November 15. The story begins in 1953 in Puerto Rico, where we meet young lovers Flora and Eusebio, and follows them through four decades of trials and tribulations, including challenges to their marriage and struggles as immigrants in the U.S. Through it all love prevails, with Boleros servings as an affecting testimonial to the mysterious forces of love and devotion. Refer to listing, page 23. —Josh B. Wardrop

THE MITCHELL RETORT

MARTHA MITCHELL CALLING The Nora Theatre Company Through November 9

She was dubbed "The Mouth from the South" by political pundits, but the always outspoken Martha Mitchell—wife of former Attorney General John Mitchell—had plenty of substance in her words. Playwright Jodi Rothe's hilarious yet pointed play, Martha Mitchell Calling, tells the story of the irrepressible southern belle that helped take down a corrupt administration during the infamous Watergate scandal. Recognized for her frank demeanor and famous phone calls to the press regarding President Nixon and his conspirators, Martha (played by Annette Miller) became a household name in the 1970s for her refusal to stay quiet—showing that American heroes can sometimes emerge where you least expect to find them. Refer to listing, page 24. —Nicole McGovern

THE FINER THNGS

Boston becomes a collectors' paradise this November by Josh B. Wardrop

HERE'S NOTHING COOLER THAN BEING able to claim you have something that nobody else has—in poker, four-of-a-kind will win you the hand, but in the real world, "one-of-a-kind" is worth ultimate bragging rights. Here in Boston, the weekend of November 14–16 presents three great opportunities to add something unique to your life with the first-ever Collectors' Weekend in Boston.

Comprised of a trio of fantastic shows—the Boston International Fine Art Show, CraftBoston Holiday 2008 and the Boston International Antiquarian Book Fair—lovers of everything from fine art to antique books to handcrafted gifts and decorative pieces have the opportunity to add to their individual collection (whatever it may be) or even start a new one.

Art lovers with unlimited time and resources can tour the globe looking for specific pieces to enhance their collections—but for the rest of us. it's much more helpful to have the art come to us. That's what makes the 12th annual Boston International Fine Art Show such a phenomenal event for art enthusiasts. The show, which takes place at the Cyclorama at the Boston Center for the Arts, unites 40 galleries from the U.S., Canada and Europe for a stunning display of traditional paintings and sculpture, contemporary abstract works and more amongst its 3,000 original pieces. In addition to the amazing art, the BIFAS also features a weekend full of lectures and panels featuring renowned international experts, as well as a Gala Preview on November 13 benefitting the Boston Symphony Orchestra that gives hardcore collectors the first glimpse of the works that will have everyone talking all weekend long.

CraftBoston, presented by Boston's venerable Society of Arts and Crafts (established in 1897), is traditionally a spring fling taking place every March. This year, though, the SAC decided to add a holiday show, giving shoppers an opportunity to get an early jump on fulfilling their Christmas and Hanukkah lists. More than 100 top craftspeople from across the country fill the Boston Westin Waterfront Hotel, exhibiting and selling unique handmade items in a variety of media—everything from ceramics and glassware, to jewelry and clothing, to furniture and mixed-media sculpture. The weekend-long sale is preceded by a special preview party featuring cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and raffles on November 13 from 6–9 p.m.

Finally, as the weather gets colder, there's nothing better than settling down in front of a roaring fire with a good book. And on Collectors' Weekend in Boston, there's no better place to find a truly "good book" than at the 32nd Boston International Antiquarian Book Fair at the Hynes Convention Center. One of the oldest and most respected antique book shows in the nation, the event is expected to draw a record number of exhibitors to Boston this year—more than 140 in all—displaying BROWSER'S PARADISE: Collectors' Weekend in Boston features prime eye candy like the lovely paintings, sculptures and prints at the Boston International Fine Art Show in the South End (pictured opposite) and the jewelry, clothing, furniture and ceramics featured at CraftBoston Holiday 2008 (above).

rare, collectible and antiquarian books, first editions and manuscripts, as well as paper ephemera like maps, autographs, photos and more. Highlights expected to catch the eye of any discerning bookworm include rare first editions by Charles Darwin, L. Frank Baum, Robert Frost and many others.

So whether you choose to spend Collectors' Weekend in Boston transfixed by one of these shows or exploring all three (and presenting a ticket from one of the shows at any of the others is worth a $5 discount on admission), you're sure to go home with something very special you can treasure forever.

Refer to listings, page 22, for complete hours, admission prices and more information on the shows of Collectors' Weekend in Boston. ® his neighborhood is best known for Fenway Park, home to our beloved Boston Red Sox, but its name actually comes from the Fens, the green parkland that winds its way through the area and makes up part of the famed Emerald Necklace. Nightclub dwellers should check out Lansdowne Street for dancing, sports bars and even a bowling alley, while Kenmore Square, famous for the Citgo sign, has become a bustling dining destination. Also not to be missed are Symphony Hall, the Museum of Fine Arts and the

he Hub's reputation as one of the most European cities in the U.S. is evidenced by a visit to this neighborhood. Home to the State House and tucked between the Charles River Esplanade, Boston Common and the Public Garden, Beacon Hill's picturesque cobblestone streets are lined by impeccable brownstones and gas-lit street lamps. To experience firsthand what it's like to live in one of our pricier neighborhoods, stroll the shops and restaurants of Charles Street or pass through Louisburg Square, the historic home to legions of Boston Brahmins and the present home of Senator John Kerry.

ATTRACTIONS:

Central Square sets a swift pace as the social center for Cambridge, with its coffee shops, burrito joints, down-home music stores, great restaurants and outstanding music venues such as the Middle East Cafe, T.T. the Bear's Place and The Cantab Lounge. Harvard Square, the grand cultural and geographical nucleus of Cambridge, boasts performing arts theaters, movie theaters, along with its storied history as the home to Harvard University.

Just north of Central Square, the quieter, more residential Inman Square boasts ethnic food shops, bars and restaurants along with local and national jazz acts at Ryles Jazz Club.

Kendall Square, home to MIT and many modern, sleek bio-tech firms and research labs, also is host to foreign and independent films at Kendall Square Cinema and the shopping mecca CambridgeSide Galleria, which houses over 100 stores.

The young, artistic crowd influences the stretch of Cambridge just beyond Harvard Square. Porter Square is full of eclectic second-hand shops and restaurants, as well as an avant-garde arts scene and live music at the Lizard Lounge. **•
